The thing about memories is they have a tendency to fade over time. But, even those long forgotten memories can be triggered by a unique sound, smell or image. It might be the sound of a barred owl that brings back evenings spent with hunting buddies around a fire ring at the deer camp. Or the distinctive aromas as you pass by the seafood section at the market that conjure early mornings at the boat ramp.

If those kinds of memories are growing fainter and fainter, while the mere smell of fresh cut grass or the hum of a computer hard drive fills your senses, then it's time to make your "To Do List" for an unforgettable year in the outdoors.

Flip to the back of this newsletter: See the 2006-2007 Texas Hunting Calendar? Start "Saving the Dates" right now! Block out the opening weekend of dove season. Clear your appointment calendar for several days in November or December and make a note to go sight in your rifle ahead of time.

While you're at it, book a long weekend on the coast this fall when the big reds are running. Do the same for next spring and plan to head for any of the more than 50 lakes that have produced Budweiser ShareLunkers.

Before you head out, be sure to renew your Super Combo license. It's the only license you need to pursue all your hunting and fishing memories. The Super Combo goes on sale on August 15 and can be purchased at most major sporting goods stores and TPWD law enforcement offices. License purchases can also be made at TPWD's Web site (www.tpwd.state.tx.us).

Remember with your Super Combo license you're ready to hunt and fish whenever and wherever you want, because it comes with all the needed state stamps. With the Super Combo, life really is better outside!

No Water, No Wildlife

Whether you like to hunt upland birds or fish shallow water bays, whether you're up along the headwaters of a Panhandle river or down where it flows into a coastal estuary, the foundation of our outdoor life is water.

Laws passed in the next few years to divvy up the water pie in Texas will have profound effects on hunting and fishing for decades to come, and sportsmen and women have a right to speak up on this issue.

Here's an important point that may not be widely understood: good land management is one of the best tools we have to conserve water. Let me explain.

Growing up along Lost Creek on a small ranch south of Abilene, I learned that if private landowners like my family overgraze our land or let it become infested with water-sucking plants like mesquite or cedar, people downstream in Austin may not have water to drink. Spring-fed creeks like Lost Creek and rivers like the Pecos and the San Saba will dry up, providing no water for people, fish, wildlife or agriculture. The bare, baked ground that results from continuous overgrazing will cause rapid rainfall run-off and soil erosion and deposit vast quantities of sediment into our rivers, lakes and bays, seriously undermining water quantity and quality.

If, on the other hand, we provide abundant ground cover on our rangeland through deferred-rotation grazing and use prescribed fire to control undesirable brush species and stimulate native grasses and forbs, the rain that falls on the vast private lands of Texas will slowly filter through those plants and soak into the protected soil.

Through good land and watershed management, Texas becomes a huge sponge, absorbing and conserving water from the Panhandle to the Gulf Coast.

Across Texas, our wildlife and fisheries biologists are working with ranchers and water planners to try and make sure there's enough clean water for people and wildlife.

What can you do to make a difference? Install low-flow showers and toilets. Be more conscious of when you use and how you use water in your homes and businesses. Plant native vegetation. Become more knowledgeable about water issues facing our state and communities. Get involved in regional water planning committees.

In our lifetimes, good, clean water will become an increasingly rare and costly commodity. We need to start treating every drop as precious, for our sake and for wildlife's sake.

Good Seagrass = Good Fishing

A regulation designed to protect fragile seagrass in the Redfish Bay State Scientific Area (RBSSA) went into effect this spring. Information signs at boat ramps, as well as boundary and entry signs within the bay, will alert boaters that it is illegal to uproot seagrass within the 50-square-mile area between Rockport, Ingleside and Port Aransas.

Boaters are still free to access all portions of the RBSSA with any type of boat or motor, so long as they can do so without digging a trench or "prop scar" through the grass beds.

Boaters who use the RBSSA – and visitors from across the state outnumber locals two to one – are urged to lift their motors and drift, pole or troll to deeper water before attempting to get a boat on plane. After an initial education period, anyone who violates the new regulation may face fines of up to $500.

TPWD biologists say the five species of seagrasses found in Redfish Bay are fundamental to the health of the fishery there. For fish it's the nursery, the roof over their heads and the grocery store all rolled into one.

TPWD Adds 40 Counties to Special Buck Harvest Rules

Deer hunters in 40 counties in East and Central Texas will be under new special buck harvest regulations this fall as part of changes to this year's hunting and fishing regulations.

The antler restriction regulations are currently in effect in 21 counties in the Oak Prairie ecoregion and have been effective in improving the age structure of the buck herd, increasing hunter opportunity, and encouraging landowners and hunters to become more actively involved in better habitat management.

Under the regulation, a lawful buck is defined as any buck having at least one unbranched antler or an inside antler spread of at least 13 inches. The bag limit in the affected counties would be two lawful bucks, no more than one of which may have an inside spread of greater than 13 inches.

Counties affected by this regulation include: Austin, Bastrop, Bell, Bosque, Bowie, Brazoria, Burleson, Caldwell, Camp, Cass, Cherokee, Colorado, Comal (east of IH-35), Comanche, Coryell, Delta, DeWitt, Eastland, Erath, Fannin, Fayette, Fort Bend, Franklin, Goliad, Gonzales, Gregg, Guadalupe, Hamilton, Harrison, Hays (east of IH-35), Hopkins, Houston, Jackson, Karnes, Lamar, Lampasas, Lavaca, Lee, Leon, Marion, Matagorda, Morris, Nacogdoches, Panola, Rains, Red River, Rusk, Sabine, San Augustine, Shelby, Somervell, Titus, Travis (east of IH-35), Upshur, Victoria, Waller, Washington, Wharton, Williamson, Wilson and Wood counties.

TPWD Seeking Flatfish Fanatics

TPWD is seeking flounder fisherman to help restock state hatcheries this fall. If you're a skilled angler you could become a member of the Coastal Fisheries Bay Team and help Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. catch southern flounder for its hatchery breeding program. Four Coastal Fisheries Bay Team events are scheduled – one each at Sabine Lake (Oct. 21), Aransas Pass (Nov. 4), Texas City (Nov. 11) and Port O'Conner (Nov. 18).

Each event is open on a first-come, first-serve basis to 30, two-angler teams, and all entrants receive Bay Team hats and t-shirts. Entrants bringing in live fish are eligible for prize drawings for a Shimano Calcutta 200B on a Texas Tackle Factory Rod, a Garmin Etrex GPS and a Boga grip scale.

For more information, or to become a member of the Coastal Fisheries Bay Team, please E-mail Robert Adami at robert.adami@tpwd.state.tx.us or call (361) 939-8745.

Lunker of a Season!

The 2005-06 Budweiser ShareLunker season ended April 30 with 32 entries, the most 13-pound-plus fish since 33 were entered in 1991-92 and the third-highest total ever.

Lake Alan Henry led with nine fish weighing a total of 124.23 pounds for an average of 13.80 pounds. Lake Fork's six fish totaled 85.04 pounds and averaged 14.173 pounds. Lake Amistad produced four fish weighing 55.54 pounds, an average of 13.885 pounds each. One of those fish weighed 15.68 pounds and was a new lake record. Amistad also produced Budweiser ShareLunker No. 400. Lake Conroe took the crown for highest average weight with three fish that weighed 43.5 pounds in the aggregate and averaged 14.5 pounds.

The average weight of the 32 entries was 13.77 pounds, just 0.08 of a pound less than the 20-year average of 13.85 pounds.

In addition to Amistad, four other lakes saw new water body records set. Lake Lewisville contributed only one fish to the program, but it was a 13.63-pound lake record, the fourth such since June 2005. Lake Ratcliff, in the Davy Crockett National Forest, has new record of 13.65 pounds. San Augustine City Lake's new record fish weighed 13.13 pounds. Lake Alan Henry's new record was also the third-largest entry of the year, an even 15 pounds.
